Similarly, Garmani Foundation established by Nawab
Mushtaq Garmani has a definite role in regional development, which is the main component and objective of this analytical study. In Kotadu Gurmani, family was much famous. The father of Nawab Mushtaq Gurmani was an honorary magistrate. All these had studied only “Masnavi Molana Room”. Mushtaq Gurmani was very eminent to correct the writing of master degree holder. Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani was born on October 25, 1905, at the home of Mahboob Ali Gurmani in Kot Addu, Muzaffargarh District, Thatha Gurmani, Pakistan. His education and support were done in a richly atmosphere according to the common custom of the Nawab’s of that age. He belonged to the influential Gurmani tribe in Pakistan. Several members of his family were honored with the title of Khan Bahadur by the British, including Khan Bahadur Mian Mahboob Ahmed Gurmani (d. 1875), Khan Bahadur Mian Sheikh Ahmed Gurmani, and Khan Bahadur Mian Zaman Ahmed Gurmani. He got his early education as a private candidate despite to admit in any school college. Later on, he got admission in M.A.O College Aligarh. He completed his education from there. His father Mian Mahboob Ali Gurmani had a close relation with English Government. He completed his graduation from Ali Garh. Engaging in practical politics at a young age, he joined the Unionist Party in 1930 and became a prominent leader. Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani was elected as a Member of the Legislative Council in the 1930 elections and was appointed to the Ministry of Health and Education in the province. But Mushtaq Gurmani was the first person of the Gurmani family who took interest in the national and regional politics. Nawab Mushtaq Ahmad Khan selected the member of the Punjab legislative Assembly in 1930 in his youth. He remained member till 1936. In 1937 he once again became the member of the assembly till 1945. Gurmani was appointed the joint secretary of Labour Minister of government of India. He remained the Director General of Employment and Population of India 1942 to 1945. He was selected for the planning the Employment Exchange service in India and represented the India in the Conference of international Labours in 1946. Nawab Mushtaq Gurmani was elected the Prime Minister of Bahawalpur state in 1947. He has performed different responsibilities in Bahawalpur state till 1948. When the Pakistan movement was in progress, he was a civil servant. After the freedom Pakistan he joined Muslim League.
He nominated the member of the provincial legislative assembly; later on, he became the director of publicity in Delhi. He was appointed the Minister in the government of Pakistan in 1949. He appointed the Minister of Kashmir affair in 1950-1951. He remained home Minister from 1951 to 1954. \(^{10}\) After this he had become the governor while I was the chief Minister. He became the governor of the Punjab in 1954. He remained Governor from November 1954 to 14 October 1955. \(^{11}\) It is said that Gurmani was mastermind of the establishment of Republican Party, when the proceeding of EBDO was in progress against Gurmani seven members of assembly had given the witness that Governor Gurmani was also involved to make Republican Party. These Seven members were Jamil Rizvi, Gul Nawaz Khan, Ch. Mohammad Ahsan, Sh. Mohammad Saeed, Rai Nosheer Khan, Hakim Khursheed Ahmad and Qazi Mureed Ahmad. \(^{12}\) When Republican Party opposed Gurmani and Republican Party demanded to Mr. Suharwardi to dismiss Gurmani as a governor. He asked to Gurmani to resign and he saved his government. After this Gurmani gave resign on 27th August 1957, when he was the governor, he was the Raja of West Pakistan. He had done all that he had wanted. Once his relative asked him. You had done everything for us, but did not stop the train here. The next day run through train stopped at Gurmani Railway Station when it was going on, because the Nawab’s brother wanted to travel in it. \(^{13}\) Modernity is essentially the name of deviation from tradition in every way. It is that denying attitude in which affirmation is only for one's self. The modern man wants to free himself from that historical determinism whose entire stock is continuity. This attitude has made the past unattractive for men. He wants to move beyond his personal experiences in it and is adamant about rejecting traditional ideas by putting them in full force. The results of this favorite activity of the new man are that today we do not feel any ecstasy in the mention of our elders. The traditional man must attempt to rediscover his past, he makes the relationship between past and present meaningful. From the mine of the past, he should discover the lustrous pearls whose shine can also dazzle today. In 1937, he was appointed as the Parliamentary Secretary for Education. He was a young and courageous player in the field of politics, always standing firm with his convictions. Even his opponents acknowledged his insight. His political journey began in undivided India and concluded in Pakistan. Despite facing numerous challenges in his political journey, he remained steadfast. In 1942, Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani was requested by Nawab Sadiq Abbasi-V of Bahawalpur to serve as the Prime Minister of the state, and he was bestowed with the title of Nawab. From 1942 to 1947, he served as the last Prime Minister of Bahawalpur and eventually merged the state into Pakistan. After the creation of Pakistan, he was appointed as the Federal Minister for Kashmir Affairs. During this time, when tensions and conflicts over Kashmir between Pakistan and India were high, he played a crucial role. In October 1949, Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani was sent as Pakistan's representative to the United Nations, where his efforts led to the signing of the ceasefire agreement and the Line of Control.

He visited Egypt and other Arab countries to gain the confidence of the Muslim world on the Kashmir issue. During the tenure of Khawaja Nazimuddin, you were appointed as the Federal Minister of Interior. He served as the Interior Minister from November 26, 1952 to October 1954. When the issue of constitution making was at hand in Pakistan, he not only proposed the One Unit scheme but also took practical steps, which facilitated the constitution-making process in Pakistan.

On October 14, 1955, he was appointed as the Governor of West Pakistan (Punjab, Sindh, NWFP, Balochistan, and Kashmir). It was a great honor that he was the all-powerful Governor of the entire West Pakistan, but due to this extraordinary position, his opponents started conspiring against him. Various tactics were used to weaken him, but he administered the duties of his office with utmost wisdom.

He remained the Governor of West Pakistan from October 14, 1955 to August 27, 1997. When Ayub Khan imposed Martial Law in October 1958 and started victimizing politicians under the black law called EBDO, he was the only politician who knocked on the doors of the court and raised his voice against the tyrant ruler.

When Ayub Khan decided to contest the presidential election against Mohtarma Fatima Jinnah, Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani wholeheartedly supported Mohtarma Fatima Jinnah and bravely confronted every tyranny and oppression of Ayub Khan. In the 1965 war, he dedicated a part of his property to the Muslim League of Pakistan and the Government of Pakistan, which is a testament to your patriotism. After 1966, you became somewhat detached from practical politics and did not participate in the 1970 general elections either. After the secession of East Pakistan, he became so disillusioned with politics that you bid farewell to practical politics forever.

In 1980, along with his family members and other elders of the clan, he laid the foundation of the Gurmani Foundation. He donated a huge sum of one billion rupees to the Lahore University of Management Sciences. He bequeathed all his property to a trust, directing that its income be used for educational and other welfare projects. He passed away on October 25, 1981, and was buried at his residence in Lahore. He had no male heir, and after his demise, his daughters carried forward this mission. They provided education and other facilities to the underprivileged people of the backward areas of Muzaffargarh District. Now, the Gurmani Foundation has educational projects running across Pakistan.

However, after the 2010 floods, his granddaughters launched projects worth millions of rupees to alleviate the educational and economic backwardness of Muzaffargarh District. These include:

1. Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani School System

4. TCS School System
5. Indus Hospital
6. Water Filtration Plants

And they established several welfare institutions. He was the pride of Muzaffargarh District and our area. Many people are unaware of his educational and political services.

When Ayub Khan enforced Martial Law, he separated himself from the politics. Actually, he was a great leader of the country. But he never remained a politician of common men. On the basis of fraternity and rent holderly he remained in politics. He left politics when he saw these bases are trembling, he left the political field. After leaving politics he spent his mostly time in prayers and in study. He died in 1981. He left three daughters behind him. Another member of this family was Mian Ghulam Gelani who belonged to this remarkable Gurmani family. But he used for him Jillani. In this family Khan Bahadur Mian Mahbob was a landlord of Thatha Gurmani and an honorary magistrate of Thatha Gurmani. He died in 1895. After him his son Mian Sheikh Ahmad made the chief of Gurmani family. He was also an honorary Majistrate. His son Ahmad Sultan was died in 1917 Punjab government admired him and gave Sheikh Ahmad 10 Sq mile land as a regard of the services of his family during war and for army. Mian Sheikh Ahmad died in 1932. 15 And after him his son Mian Mahbob Ali was also appointed Zaildar, honorary majistrate and member district board. He had become orphan when he was only two year and his father was died at Multan in 1917. His Family had a strong background in the district. His uncle, Nawab Mushtaq Ahmed Gurmani served as Member Punjab Legislative Assembly, Interior Minister. He remained the Governor West Pakistan. Mian Ghulam Jillani used the word Jillani than Gurmani. 16 He entered in politics and elected in the election 1945-46 from the north electoral Halqa. Mian Ghulam Jillani was the candidate of All India Muslim League while his opponent candidate was Malik Qadir Bakhsh Jakhar Unionist. The president of Muslim League Sardar Abdul Hameed Khan Dasti also visited in this Halqa and advised the people it is the time to make Muslim League strong. He said Pakistan is our destination. His speech put a magical effect and Mian Ghulam Jillani got 7524 votes, which was a record in the district at this time. Malik Qadir Bakhsh got 3741 votes and was defeated by 3783 votes.
